Forgotten Books, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Botany: An Elementary This book is made for the pupil: Lessons with Plants was made to supplement the work of the teacher. There are four general subjects in this book: the nature of the plant itself; the relation of the plant to its surroundings; histological studies; determination of the kinds of plants. From the pedagogical point of view, the third is the least important: the writer has inserted it because so many schools want it. Each of the subjects is practically distinct, so that the teacher may begin where he will. Few schools will desire to pursue all the four parts. The notes in small type at the ends of the chapters are intended as suggestions and to supply information to teachers: they are not necessarily for class use. The explanation of karyokinesis, for example, on page 239, is intended to answer frequent inquiries from teachers; it is not to be taught to beginners. The main object of the Notes, however, is to suggest experiments and corollary observations. The schools and the teachers are not ready for the text-book which presents the subject from the view-point of botanical science.
